Personal data collected or held by Bradwell Bowling Club (The Club) is used and processed under the General Data Protection Regulation, applicable from 25th May 2018. The Club currently holds personal information as to the names, addresses, telephone numbers and any other data provided by the completion of competition entry forms and Club membership application/renewal forms. These details are recorded and stored for administrative purposes only and are not shared with any other person or organisation or published outside the Club except for details required by the leagues/competitions in which the Club plays, again for administrative purposes. Telephone numbers are published on the Club noticeboard and with the team captains only for those competition entrants who may need to contact one another.

The Club has reviewed how we seek, record and manage consent under the new regulations and consider we have the correct procedure in place. However, should any person seek to object, delete or rectify information already provided or restrict processing in the future then they should notify the Club Data Protection Officer.
